Before School Monday-Friday Study in the Learning Commons: The Learning Commons is open in the morning at 6:45 am to 7:25 am again for students who wish to study, finish homework and/or collaborate on projects.

Project ALS: Attention any student who thinks they may want to work in the fields of business, science, medicine, or pharmaceuticals. Normally, you would have to do hours of research to learn about amazing career pathways from experts in the field. However, this opportunity will not only help you answer college common application questions about the importance of learning beyond the classroom, but it may also even motivate you to find a summer internship. And all your inquiries regarding these four professions can be answered in our own South Auditorium in approximately one hour on March 31, from 2:30-3:30 pm. You can take the late bus if you are not staying for TEDx. The founders of Project ALS, Meredith, and Valerie Estess, who have just developed and received FDA approval for the first drug treatment for ALS, will speak about their specific knowledge and experience of the drug discovery/development process. Please see Ms. Goodson in room 279 if you have any questions.
